

A. Issues found

The draft is strong and materially consistent with the underlying policy: it keeps the core rules intact that affiliates may use only approved materials, must use the latest approved version, must not make misleading edits or remove disclosures, must submit new materials before use, and must stop using materials once they are replaced or withdrawn. That core logic is stated clearly across the homepage, FAQ, onboarding, tooltips, and warnings.

The main issue is layer mixing. The file still contains internal framing, a full content map, operational notes, legal-review notes, and rollout guidance, even though the public-facing layer should stay limited to website, onboarding, checkbox, tooltip, FAQ, and warning copy. That makes it useful as a workpack, but not yet clean as a final website-copy pack.

A second issue is slight overlength in onboarding. Four separate acceptance checkboxes plus six onboarding screens may be more than necessary for a clean activation flow. The meaning is right, but the product layer should be tighter.

A third issue is public enforcement tone. The FAQ answer about misuse is accurate, but for public-facing copy it may be better to keep the stronger sanction detail in onboarding/dashboard/support, while using a shorter, trust-preserving version on public pages.

B. Missing or unclear points

The draft should say a little more clearly that approved use includes official POOOL pages only where they are approved for affiliate use. That distinction already appears in the draft and should stay visible in the final version.

The final website layer should also distinguish more cleanly between:

- public website copy,
- affiliate onboarding copy,
- affiliate dashboard warnings,
- and support/help text.

Right now those are all present, but still packaged together like a working draft instead of a finalized website-copy deliverable.

C. Revised Website Copy Final

Homepage short copy

Use approved materials only.

POOOL affiliates may use only approved materials and official POOOL pages approved for affiliate use.

Homepage support copy

Use the latest approved version, keep required disclosures in place, and stop using any material once it is replaced or withdrawn.

FAQ

What materials may POOOL affiliates use?

Affiliates may use current approved marketing materials and official POOOL pages approved for affiliate use.

Can affiliates create their own content?

Only if it has been submitted and approved before use. If a material is not clearly approved, it should be treated as not approved.

Can affiliates edit approved materials?

Only where limited edits are expressly allowed. Affiliates must not change meaning, remove disclosures, add urgency, add safety or return claims, or turn materials into advice or sales content.

Can affiliates keep using older versions?

No. If a material is replaced or withdrawn, or a newer approved version is issued, the older version must no longer be used unless POOOL expressly states otherwise.

What if an affiliate wants to use a new format or campaign?

New materials must be submitted for review before use.

What happens if an affiliate uses the wrong material?

POOOL may require correction or removal and may apply program restrictions where needed.

Onboarding flow

Screen 1 — Approved materials only

You may use only approved POOOL affiliate materials and official POOOL pages approved for affiliate use.

Screen 2 — What this means

Use the materials POOOL gives you. Use the latest approved version. Keep required disclosures in place.

Screen 3 — What you may not do

Do not create unapproved decks, rewrite materials into advice or sales language, add promises or urgency, remove disclosures, or keep using outdated content.

Screen 4 — New materials

If you want to use a new material, submit it first and wait for approval before using it.

Screen 5 — Replaced or withdrawn materials

If a material is replaced or withdrawn, stop using it immediately and switch to the approved replacement if one is available.

Screen 6 — Why this matters

Use of affiliate materials is monitored. Misuse may affect content access, referral activity, commissions, or affiliate status.

Checkbox text

- I understand that I may use only current POOOL Approved Marketing Materials and official POOOL sources approved for affiliate use.
- I understand that I may not use materials that are unapproved, outdated, misleading, missing required disclosures, or inconsistent with the referral-only model.
- I understand that new materials must be submitted and approved before use.
- I understand that if a material is replaced or withdrawn, I must stop using it immediately.

Tooltip text

- Approved materials — Use only materials that are clearly approved for affiliate use.
- Current version — Use the latest approved version unless POOOL expressly allows otherwise.
- Official pages — Official POOOL pages may be used only where they are approved for affiliate use.

- Edits — Do not change approved materials in a way that changes meaning or removes disclosures.
- New submission — New materials must be submitted and approved before use.
- Withdrawn materials — If a material is replaced or withdrawn, stop using it immediately.
- Disclosure integrity — Required disclosures must stay visible, intact, and unchanged.

Short website version

You may use only approved POOOL affiliate materials and official POOOL pages approved for affiliate use. Use the latest approved version, keep required disclosures in place, do not make misleading changes, and stop using any material once it is replaced or withdrawn.

D. Final legal-review flags only

1. Whether public-facing copy should always say “official POOOL pages approved for affiliate use” rather than a shorter variant.
2. Whether the public FAQ should mention sanctions only in general terms, while stronger enforcement wording stays in onboarding and dashboard copy.
3. Whether the four onboarding checkboxes should remain separate or be partially consolidated in the final product flow.

E. Readiness note for website, onboarding, and product implementation

This is ready for website, onboarding, dashboard, and help-center implementation review. The substance is already strong. The main improvement was not changing the rule set, but cleaning the copy into a tighter public-facing layer and removing unnecessary internal-draft framing from the final presentation. It remains aligned with the approved marketing-materials policy logic.
